M-PHIL DISSERTATION, A SUMMARY.

The title of my M-Phil dissertation was "Identity formation in Jamaica Kincaid's Novels: A Psychoanalytical Feministic Study". In this work I have analysed different texts of Jamaica Kincaid, under the theoretical framework of Nancy Chodorow, stating the early years of a child's life are the major determining factor in the identity formation of females. The relational impact of parents, especially mother, society and peers also contribute in the identity formation process and is given special value. A glimpse at the autobiography further revealed the inner psyche of the protagonists that is the authoress herself. It was an interesting research topic which can open a new avenue to study the psychological impacts in an individual's life.
